

ABSTRACT

There is provided a novel composition containing extract from Melia azadirachta and a surfactant, preferably cetrimonium chloride to repel and/or treat head lice infestation in humans. The composition can be regularly applied although a single overnight application has proven to be virtually 100% effective in killing both adult lice and more importantly, louse eggs.